We're currently dealing with some technical issues that are causing delays in our market data. Please be patient as we work to resolve this problem and get your personalized lists up and running again. The NasdaqGM quote is currently delayed. Our previous close was 529.08, with an open of 530.08. The bid is at 528.45 for 6100 shares, while the ask is 529.56 for 100 shares. The market data we provide is designed to reflect the performance of the Nasdaq-100 Index, which includes a range of well-known companies such as Microsoft and Amazon. To ensure that our portfolio stays in line with the index, we make adjustments from time to time to match any changes in the composition or weighting of its securities. Our holdings include some big names like Microsoft Corporation (8.64%), NVIDIA Corporation (8.32%), and Amazon.com, Inc. (5.48%). We also have a smaller stake in Meta Platforms, Inc. (3.58%), Costco Wholesale Corporation (2.87%), and Alphabet Inc. (2.53%). One of our key holdings is Advanced Micro Devices (AMD), which designs a variety of digital semiconductors for various markets, including PCs, gaming consoles, data centers, industrial, and automotive applications. AMD has been diversifying its business in recent years, with the acquisition of field-programmable gate array leader Xilinx. In other market news, stocks were up on Thursday after President Trump called for lower interest rates due to low inflation pressures. Oracle's stock surged 13% after the company reported strong results that pleased investors, while Boeing's shares fell 5% following a plane crash in India. We also have significant holdings in McDonald's (MCD) and Alibaba, two of the world's largest companies in their respective industries. McDonald's is the largest restaurant chain globally, with over 40,000 locations in more than 100 countries. Alibaba, on the other hand, is the largest online and mobile commerce company as measured by gross merchandise volume.
